

American Medical Association Resident and Fellow Section Regional Chair Position

Regional Chairs will be responsible for maintaining contact with state leaders, fostering communication between local and national RFS leaders, recruiting new RFS members, and developing new methods to increase resident/fellow participation at the Annual and Interim meetings. In addition, Regional Chairs will be vital links in disseminating information on how the AMA is positively impacting the lives of residents and fellows around the country.

Regional Chairs will be elected by their respective regions during the Annual Meeting and will conduct the business of the Regional Meeting at both the Annual and Interim Meetings. After being elected, each Regional Chair will serve for a one-year term that will conclude at the following Annual Meeting.

At the Interim and Annual Meetings, the Regional Chairs are required to submit a short report of membership, legislative awareness, and leadership promotion activities to their respective regions and the RFS Governing Council.

Regional Chairs will also have an open invitation to all General Sessions of the AMA-RFS Governing Council and shall be invited to additional leadership events at the discretion of the AMA-RFS GC Chair. The Regional Chair position is a 1 year term.

Curriculum Vitae

Be sure to highlight those contributions which bear upon the position. The AMA publishes an excellent monograph on how to compose a curriculum vitae. It is well worth consulting and may be obtained from the Department of Resident and Fellow Services.

Applicant's Statement

This is a three-to-four paragraph statement which affords the candidate an opportunity to accentuate key qualifications. In prose form, you should mention the experiences in your career which give you particular expertise in the area(s) for which you are applying. It is a good idea to include some mention of your position in the residency/fellowship continuum indicating how many years you will remain in graduate medical education. Try to give the Assembly insight into your interest for serving on the council.

AMA- RFS members are encouraged to contact members of the Governing Council or staff personally in advance of your application. They can often provide additional information about a given position and provide a better idea of the issues and opportunities associated with service.
