

Women in Medicine: Born to Lead

The American Medical Association Women Physicians Section (WPS) is proud to celebrate the AMA's Women in Medicine Month this coming September. This year's theme is "Women in medicine: Born to lead," capturing the AMA-WPS and its long history of championing women as leaders.

AMA-WPS Women in Medicine Day

Join the celebration

Explore the rich history of the AMA-WPS in decade-by-decade timelines featuring remarkable accomplishments that affect us both as physicians and as women.

ama-assn.org/women-medicine-month

Meet the honorees of this year's AMA-WPS Inspirational Physicians Recognition Program who have offered their time, wisdom and support to others throughout their professional journeys.

ama-assn.org/inspirational-physicians

Visit the AMA-WPS website on Sept. 13 when we will announce the 2017 research grant winners of the Joan F. Giambalvo Fund for the Advancement of Women.

ama-assn.org/giambalvo-fund

Follow the AMA on Facebook and Twitter to see inspiring stories about women in medicine throughout the month. #WIMmonth

Visit ama-assn.org/wps to learn more about AMA-WPS leadership opportunities and advocacy for women's health issues.

Not an AMA member? Gain access to the AMA's benefits for women in medicine by joining today: commerce.ama-assn.org/membership.