

Working Part-Time:
A Self-Assessment Tool for Physicians

American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP)
American Medical Association (AMA) Women Physicians Congress

You may be thinking about reducing your practice hours, job sharing or seeking another kind of part-time position. You are not alone; a growing number of physicians are working part-time or considering it.

Certainly there are both rewards and challenges in working part-time. It allows more time for balancing family responsibilities, or for pursuing other professional interests. At the same time, some physicians report a down-side, including the loss of benefits, reductions in administrative support, or a perceived drop in their professional status.

The most important factor in making the decision is understanding your objectives and realistically evaluating what you need to do to achieve them. You must identify what you can live with and what you cannot, as well as clearly evaluate your career goals and job satisfaction measures. Finally, it is about negotiation – with yourself, your loved ones, and your employers or partners.

The following Physician Self-Assessment questionnaire will help you think through these issues and prepare for finding the best work option for you. This questionnaire has been provided to you as a PDF file that you can download and print so that you can think about these issues and refer back to your answers as you explore your work/practice options.

A next steps section is included at the end of the questionnaire as a starting point for thinking about what steps you might take next in considering your work/practice options.

Next steps and how to use your answers:

Now that you have completed the self-assessment tool you may have some questions about what to do next. This section is provided as a starting point for additional ideas and suggestions as you explore your work/practice options while keeping in mind the answers you have provided. It is not intended to be an exhaustive listing of resources and solutions.

General information:

Review the resources available on our Work-Practice Options Web site.

Check out the reading list and Web site links for additional resources and useful information at <http://www.ama-assn.org/ama/noindex/category/>

Uncovering possible part-time opportunities:

Consider using the ranked list in question 9 as a starting point in uncovering possible part-time opportunities. For example, if you ranked personal knowledge of or a personal contact at proposed job as number 1, you may wish to start talking with colleagues about your desire for part-time employment and ask them to keep an eye open for you for part-time opportunities.

The resources on the Work/Practice Options Web site also include links to job posting Web sites such as JAMAcareernet at <http://jamacareernet.ama-assn.org/> and the American Academy of Pediatrics resource, <http://www.pedjobs.org>.

Local, specialty, and state medical societies often have job posting and career assistance sections on their Web sites as well.

Finding people who can provide you with information:

If you were unable to identify specific people to assist you in question 10, you may wish to explore the resources available from your specialty or state medical society. A listing of women specialty organizations is available on the WPC Web site at <http://www.ama-assn.org/go/wpc>. In addition, the Web resources on this Web site may help in locating people to assist you.
