The American Medical Association's (AMA) Advocacy Resource Center (ARC) is the AMA's state legislative and regulatory advocacy unit. The ARC works together with state and national medical specialty societies on state-level issues critical to physicians and their patients by creating model legislative language, turn-key resources and tools, providing 24/7 technical legal analysis, and representing the AMA before numerous national policy-making organizations.

Building relationships with national policy-making organizations

Our work with state and national medical specialty societies, as well as national state policymaking organizations is critical to helping organized medicine approach state-level advocacy in a strategic and coordinated manner. Our attorneys work closely with many national organizations, including:

- Administrators in Medicine
- American Public Health Association
- American Society of Medical Association Counsel
- American Tort Reform Association
- Federation of State Medical Boards
- National Academy for State Health Policy
- National Association of Attorneys General
- National Association of Insurance Commissioners
- National Association of Medicaid Directors
- National Association of State Budget Officers
- National Conference of Insurance Legislators
- National Conference of State Legislatures
- National Governors Association
- PIAA
