HOW DO I START? WHAT DO I NEED TO DO?

AMA local campus sections make a difference

Whether you are a new member looking to start a section at your medical school or a current member transitioning into residency and about to pass the torch to the next wave of student leaders, this guide provides the insights and building blocks needed to help ensure your local campus section members have an impact on campus and in your community.

An active AMA medical student section will provide your group with multiple opportunities to engage in meaningful activities at the local, regional and national levels. These include:

LOCALLY

You can develop and host numerous educational activities throughout the year that raise awareness about public health issues, policy initiatives and medicine-related topics important to you and fellow medical students. You can also engage in community-based service efforts that aid in making our nation healthier.

REGIONALLY

Opportunities often present themselves to work with nearby states to coordinate advocacy and service efforts, or simply to band together to discuss policy developments tailored to each region and its membership.

NATIONALLY

Ultimately, your section plugs into the full AMA policy-building process, complete with voting privileges, through the AMA-MSS assembly held twice a year at our annual and interim meetings. This is your pathway to helping shape how the AMA-MSS communicates its priorities in the AMA House of Delegates. Each meeting provides medical students the opportunity to network with like-minded students passionate about health policy and to participate—even lead—educational programs available to all section members.

WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS OF A LOCAL AMA-MSS CAMPUS SECTION?

There are countless activities your local campus section can execute, many of which already have roadmaps that the AMA-MSS is ready to share. Successful programming from other local campus sections include:

- Anatomy prep sessions (first-years)
- Board review sessions (second-years)
- Residency selection and planning workshops (third-years)
- Moving and relocating tips (fourth-years)

Local sections are also well-positioned to deliver:

- Programming to bring in compelling speakers to address relevant topics in health care; organize educational workshops; generate networking opportunities with other students and physicians
- Socializing opportunities to interact with fellow medical students for social and career networking
- Policy-writing work with students at your school to develop and write resolutions and review resolutions from around the country (We strongly encourage this type of participation—it's how you and your local section make your voice heard, and how your input and views gain the potential to move forward for formal discussion during our national AMA-MSS assembly meetings.)

Students in any year of medical training can benefit from a strong local campus section that:

- Fosters education
- Participates in community service
- Coordinates active participation in national AMA meetings
- Provides visible presence on campus

KEY STEPS FOR STARTING A LOCAL CAMPUS SECTION AT YOUR SCHOOL

STEP 1

Register as a student organization on your medical school campus.

A critical step to establishing a section is to become recognized as an official club by your medical school's administration. In some cases this may be a simple formality; in other cases registering your section with your administration is required before obtaining support for your group. You also may need to provide documentation to your school's dean of student affairs that describes your section's goals and organizational structure, as well as information about the AMA-MSS's work and presence at the national level.

Identify a faculty or administration member who can advise your section.

The relationships you build with the faculty and administration at your medical school are extremely important to the success of your section. A faculty advisor will offer continuity for students during transition periods. A local campus section mentor can also bring general organizational knowledge and institutional memory to your section's efforts and structure, and help new student leaders get up to speed with current issues and priorities important to the AMA. View the Faculty Advisor Guide for more information and resources to provide your faculty advisor.

STEP 3

Write or revise bylaws. Bylaws outlining roles and responsibilities can serve as the foundation for running a fair and effective local campus section.

Model bylaws are included in this guide and can be tailored to the needs of your local campus section board. With a constructive set of bylaws, you can identify leadership positions and corresponding responsibilities. (Note: these bylaws, which represent an ideal AMA-MSS local campus section, should be used as a model. It is not intended that all provisions in the model bylaws be used by each local campus section. The model offers a generic framework that local campus sections can modify or implement to best suit their local campus section needs and strengths.)

STEP 4

Set up bank account. As a new chapter, you may be interested in setting up a bank account to receive Section Involvement Grant Funding, as well as commissions, should your chapter become eligible to receive them. The first step to set up a bank account is to speak with a staff member on your campus, typically someone who works in the Office of Student Affairs or Student Life. Each campus has different guidelines and instructions on how to set up an account, and speaking with your administration is the first step.

Typically, your local campus section treasurer or outreach leader will set up the bank account. When speaking with your school's administration, it's helpful to have a bank account name already in mind. The bank account name should be no longer than 50 characters and include <<SCHOOL NAME>> and <<AMA-MSS>>. This may mean you need to use an abbreviation of the school name. Account names should also be evergreen—i.e., do not use current class year as part of the account name. An acceptable account name example is “Alabama Coll of Osteo AMA MSS”. An improper name would be something like “UKCOM Class of 2022” (University of Kentucky College of Medicine) or just “AMA MSS Chapter” (with the school name excluded).

Your state medical society can help

Many state and county societies have a state medical student section and a state governing board composed of student leaders. Each of these groups, like your own local campus section, meets regularly and may host meetings near your school. By contacting your state’s medical student section leadership, you might find areas of mutual interest that you can bring to your campus and community. The state society leadership can be helpful with jump starting programming or raising awareness for speakers or other optional events that are relevant to your local campus section. Reach out to your state society leadership directly to see how they can potentially facilitate student involvement.

RECRUITMENT AND ENGAGEMENT OPPORTUNITIES

As you build your local campus section, you'll find there are many roles and responsibilities that must be filled. The Outreach Leader role is a critical student leader role that is part of the Medical Student Outreach Program (MSOP). MSOP is a peer-to-peer recruitment program that recruits first-year medical students to join the AMA. Although the Outreach Leader is the liaison with AMA staff on recruitment responsibilities, all local campus section student leaders should encourage peers to join the AMA and be active in your local section's efforts and activities.

Build membership and engagement on your campus

The more AMA members at your school, the stronger your local campus section will be.

As a reward for recruitment performance, AMA local campus sections can earn commissions based on the number of four-year student memberships achieved throughout the recruitment year. The higher the percentage of M1 class size recruited for membership, the more commission dollars your section receives. When your local campus section is successful in growing membership through MSOP, you'll have access to funding—funding that you can reinvest in your campus section's growth through things such as creative recruiting programs, section development, travel to AMA meetings, community service and other professional events.

Students interested in serving as an Outreach Leader and learning more about MSOP can email studentops@ama-assn.org.

Section Involvement Grant Program

The AMA is proud to support local initiatives through its medical student leaders. The Section Involvement Grant (SIG) program is available to local campus section leaders at all medical schools to assist local AMA student recruitment and engagement efforts throughout the school year. Examples of SIG events include:

- Student organization fair or orientation event
- Lunch and learns or coffee chats
- AMA information session
- Lunchtime lecture on a public health topic
- White coat headshots for student members
- Social events such as a trivia night or speed networking
- Travel to national AMA events

Learn more and work with your local campus section to apply for a grant.

HOW SHOULD YOUR LOCAL CAMPUS SECTION BE ORGANIZED?

How your section is run—i.e., how decisions are made, how ideas are generated, how members get involved—depends largely on the size of your medical school and your local campus' needs. Bylaws outlining roles and responsibilities can serve as the foundation for running a fair and effective section. Model bylaws are included in this guide and can be tailored to the needs of your local campus section board. With a constructive set of bylaws, you can identify leadership positions and corresponding responsibilities. The following are potential leadership positions and duties (feel free to modify position responsibilities as appropriate to fit your local campus section's needs):

- Chair or president ensures the section is recognized as a club on campus and coordinates all section activities on campus; the chair is the certifying officer for your delegation
- Vice chair or vice president handles section duties when the chair or president is absent; the vice chair might coordinate local campus section committees
- Delegate and alternate delegate are the section's voting representatives at national AMA-MSS annual and interim assembly meetings (In their official capacities, your AMA-MSS delegates represent the interests of your local section nationally and communicate the actions taken at every national meeting back to your local section.)
- Community service coordinator is responsible for coordinating service activities on campus and/or in your community
- Secretary and/or treasurer maintain(s) the section's documents, materials and finances
- Outreach leader serves as the liaison to the AMA Medical Student Outreach Program \(MSOP\) and coordinates membership recruitment and retention activities on campus. This position is a critical connection to the larger organization.

You may find your local campus section needs additional leadership. You are welcome to add additional members to your section board to meet the need of your campus.

Also, as you develop your local campus section leadership and/or turn over leadership annually, please register your leaders using the following link.

PLANNING A PRODUCTIVE YEAR

Below is a section calendar guide, which includes suggested deadlines to keep you and your team organized. Tailor your calendar to include your school's mandatory curricular activities, such as major exam blocks, so your events do not conflict. Conducting monthly check-ins with your section's board members, either virtually or in person, is a useful way to ensure your section is being productive and addressing any outstanding issues or needs.

AMA NAME/LOGO APPROVAL

1. Use of AMA name/logo approval: Use of the AMA name and/or logo for policy, advocacy or education events must be preapproved in writing by the AMA. This preapproval requirement extends to the use of the AMA local campus section name <Medical School, Local Campus Section> or <Local Campus Section, Medical School>. Use of commission payments from the AMA or AMA Section Involvement Grant funding does not supersede the need for approval of AMA name and logo use.

2. Approval process: To seek approval for the use of the AMA name and/or logo in conjunction with an AMA local campus policy, advocacy or education events, please send the following information through this form no later than three weeks before the event.

- a. Date of event
- b. Title of event
- c. Sponsors (and any co-sponsors) of event
- d. Target audience for event
- e. Event speakers
- f. Brief description of the content to be presented

If approval to use the AMA name and/or logo has not been given through the above channels, the AMA may require immediate removal of the name and logo from all materials related to the event.

3. Event guidelines: Before planning an event related to policy, advocacy or education, students should be familiar with the AMA's most recent actions and statements and align their event accordingly. Events that are held at local campus sections that are not aligned with current AMA policy may be asked to remove the AMA name and/or logo.

HOW DO I TRANSITION MY RESPONSIBILITIES TO THE NEXT OFFICER?

Section officer transition guidance

It is important that once you have established a section board, new AMA members to the board become aware of the history and future plans for your section. Use the questions below as a guide to the leadership transition process after your section board completes elections.

Officer discussion questions

1. What events did our section host during the previous year?
2. What is the status of current projects, if any, that new leadership should know about?
3. Who are the key contacts (i.e., advisor, campus administrator, etc.) new leadership needs to meet?
4. Who was our school's delegate in the AMA-MSS assembly at our annual and interim meetings?

Be sure to update contact information for your new section board members using this form.

Section discussion questions

1. Discuss successes. "Definitely do this again ..."
2. Discuss opportunities for growth. "Here's what I would change ..."
3. Brainstorm ideas. A goal you didn't have the chance to accomplish or ideas for further programming. "I didn't get around to ..."
4. Offer suggestions. "Skip this, to focus on this ..."

HOW DO I RUN AN EFFECTIVE MEETING?

Effective meetings require planning and organization. A successful agenda for a meeting or phone conference prepares attendees for the content of the meeting, sets time expectations, and defines clear actions for discussion or completion. Meeting agendas should clearly define the objectives and provide guidance on what materials attendees should prepare ahead of time. A meeting agenda template is included in this guide. The following agenda design tips will help ensure your meeting is productive and efficient:

1. Allow a few days before the start of the meeting to begin planning your agenda. When possible, include members of the board or council in development of the agenda. Ask members, "What topics matter most to you?"
 - a. While the chair of the meeting cannot make any promises regarding meeting content, attempt to gain insight into what topics the council deems important and incorporate this information into the agenda.
2. Clearly define a meeting objective with a brief description of the main points of action to be discussed during the allotted time
3. Allocate appropriate time. Be thoughtful of meeting topics and budget time in the agenda.
 - a. A note on meeting order: Place short and straightforward elements at the beginning of the agenda in order to complete easy tasks and build momentum. Place most important or difficult elements of the meeting in the middle. Be mindful and do not place these important topics too close to the end of the meeting time in case your time goes over.
4. Provide brief and detailed descriptions of agenda items. Try using questions that indicate exact information to gather. Examples: What challenges occurred in planning for X meeting? How can we address these challenges?
5. Distribute the meeting agenda a day prior to the scheduled meeting. The advance notice allows participants to prepare necessary discussion points based on the proposed agenda content.
6. Encourage all participants to take notes during the meeting, this practice promotes active listening. There should always be a designated participant who keeps detailed minutes of the conversation and distributes these minutes in a timely manner after the meeting concludes.
7. If extended time is needed for topics scheduled in the meeting agenda, allow participants to finish their thoughts in a separate forum (such as through an electronic list or email to the chair) after the conclusion of the meeting.
8. Solicit feedback from the meeting through anonymous and non-anonymous surveys. Feedback allows meetings to evolve and best suit the needs of attendees.

Explanation of Local Campus Section Model Bylaws

These bylaws should be used as a model. This document represents an ideal local campus section; it is not intended that all provisions in the Bylaws be used by each local campus section. The model is generic and can serve as a framework for local campus sections to modify or implement their own set of bylaws to increase local campus section strength.

3.3 The most representative voice and influential advocate for medical students and their patients:

3.4 A dynamic organization that provides value to its medical student members

4. Core Values of the AMA-MSS

4.1 Advocacy: Caring advocates for our patients, our profession, and our medical student members.

4.2 Leadership: The stewards of the future of medicine.

4.3 Excellence: Commitment to provide the highest quality service, products, and information for our members
