

Delegate

Michael Visenio, MD, MPH

Residency/Fellowship Program: University of Nebraska

Expected Graduation Date: 2026

Specialty: General Surgery

Dear Colleagues,

It has been a joy and a privilege representing the Resident and Fellows Section as a Sectional Delegate this past year, from once again meeting in person during A-22, to taking part in thoughtful and vital discussions during reference committees and in the House of Delegates. Along with our medical student and young physician colleagues, we continue to push the boundaries in seeking health equity for our patients, improving the medical and surgical learning environment, and defending the rigorous training standards required to practice medicine. With this and every meeting, there is a new opportunity to advance the medical profession, and I hope to continue being a part of that effort.

I am a general surgery resident at University of Nebraska Medical Center currently completing a surgical research fellowship at Northwestern University. My research interests include minimizing health disparities in surgery, as well as studying health policies and their effects on the delivery of health care. While in research, I have made it a priority to remain committed to attending AMA meetings. During medical school, I served as an MSS Sectional Delegate and was on multiple standing committees. Now during residency, I serve on the RFS Standing Committee on Medical Education, as well as the RFS Representative on the Surgical Caucus Executive Committee.

As a Sectional Delegate, I will wholeheartedly represent the voice of the RFS in the HOD and fight for issues that matter to residents and fellows. I also hope to help make RFS accessible to new members or foster new connections with current members during our deliberations in various caucuses and committees throughout the meetings.

Thank you for your consideration,
Michael