

OMSS – Alternate Delegate

Nancy Fan, MD

Obstetrics and Gynecology

Nancy Fan, MD grew up in Exton, Pennsylvania and attended the University of Pennsylvania, graduating with a BA in History of Medicine. She received her medical degree from Temple University of Medicine and completed her residency in OB/Gyn at the Baylor College of Medicine in Houston, TX, where she was chief resident. She moved to Wilmington Delaware and joined a solo independent practice, eventually practicing as an OB/Gyn generalist for 12 years in private practice, before becoming employed by Saint Francis Hospital in 2009, where she still practices as a full time OB/Gyn generalist.

She has held various leadership positions, including the current Chair of the Delaware Health Care Commission for the State of Delaware since 2015; serves as a Board member for the Delaware Medical Education Foundation and Delaware Foundation for Medical Services; the alternate delegate for the Organized Medical Staff Section of the AMA; a past President of the Medical Society of Delaware; and the immediate past chair of the Delaware Section of ACOG. In her leadership positions, she focuses on initiatives which enhance physician wellness; maintain practice sustainability with payment reform; address the effects of systemic racism and implicit bias; and optimize quality health care for women. Outside of work, she devotes time to the Chinese School of Delaware, as chair of the Board, and lives in Wilmington with her husband, two teenage children and two labradoodle puppies.
