

Nancy L. Mueller, MD

Position: Member-at-Large

A neurologist in solo practice at the Institute of Neurological Care since 1982 after completing a residency in Internal Medicine at Englewood Hospital and a residency in Neurology at New York University Medical Center culminating in being a Chief Resident.

There is a continuing affiliation with NYU Langone Health as an Associate Professor of Neurology intermittently since 1982 to the present day.

Organized Medicine has been a part of the ongoing commitment to patients and their families. It is not only for the practice of medicine but for the advocacy of a patient's right to equal and fair treatment. It is the best avenue for communication between physicians on the local, state, and federal level. It is this fellowship, across all specialties and in communication with other healthcare professionals, that focuses on the need to improve the health of the people of this national and across the world, which is the essence of organized medicine.

There are many difference circumstances under which a physician practices medicine. These differences have changed over time and will continue to evolve. This evolution should be explored and integrated into our healthcare system. As physicians we are committed to continuing our education for the betterment of the lives of our patients. There has never been only one way to practice medicine and our education will never end.
