

AMA Foundation Board—Leadership Development Institute (LDI)

The AMA Foundation’s Leadership Development Institute (LDI) is dedicated to cultivating a diverse cohort of aspiring physician leaders who are committed to their patients and communities. Through two cohorts, the LDI offers medical students, residents, and fellows a unique opportunity to gain individualized insight into the skills needed to foster their careers and the future of medicine.

Opportunities

HAM cohort

- Pair with an experienced physician leader to work with throughout the program year.
- Learn from and network with leaders in their fields and organized medicine.
- Through in-person events, monthly webinars, and a year-long mentor program, develop leadership skills to utilize in residency and beyond.

HPPA cohort

- Pair with an experienced physician leader to work with throughout the program year.
- Gain insight into health policy processes in organized medicine, as well as in state and federal government.
- Develop leadership skills and competencies to become health policy and patient advocates in their fields and beyond.
- Attend the National Advocacy Conference (NAC) or the Medical Student Advocacy Conference (MAC), in addition to the other in-person events, virtual education sessions and mentorship opportunities.

Terms of Service: One year.
